

8.2 Now, identify the proper case for the subject, direct object, indirect object, predicate noun/adjective.

Example: He drank the bowl of wine .

He (nominative) | drank (verb) | bowl (accusative)

1) He demanded a second bowl.

He (nominative) | demanded | bowl (accusative)

2) "Tell me your name now, quickly."

(Subject you is implied) | tell | name (accusative)
(to) me (dative)

3) "I will give my guest a gift."

I (nominative) | will give | gift (accusative)
(to) guest (dative)

4) "The rains from Zeus build our wine's strength, | but this is nectar, ambrosia."

(Clause 1) Rains (nominative) | build | strength (accusative)

(Clause 2) this (nominative) | is \ nectar , ambrosia (nominative)

Note: The verb is is like and = sign: this = nectar; nominative = nominative.

5) "It flows from heaven."

It (nominative) | flows

Cont'd on next page.

6) I gave him another fiery bowl.

I (nominative) | gave | bowl (accusative)

(to) him (dative)

7) Three bowls he drank to the last drop.

he (nominative) | drank | bowls (accusative)

8) "I will tell you my name, but you must give me a guest-gift." (Two main clauses)

I (nominative) | | will tell | name (accusative)

(to) you (dative)

(but)

you (nominative) | | must give | gift (accusative)

(to) me (dative)

9) "I am Noone."

I (nominative) | am \ 'Noone' (nominative) |